Overview & Current Events

K-Bro Linen is the largest owner and operator of laundry and linen processing facilities in Canada and a major player in the United Kingdom. The company serves as an "essential service" provider, managing the entire lifecycle of textiles, including sheets, blankets, surgical gowns, and towels, for the healthcare and hospitality sectors. K-Bro operates through two primary divisions: a Canadian division spanning ten cities (from Victoria to Québec City) and a UK division (operating under the Fishers, Shortridge, and Synergy brands). K-Bro Linen was founded in 1954 and headquartered in Edmonton, Canada. The company generated $369 million in revenue last year. It pays dividends on a monthly basis.

On March 19th, 2026, K-Bro Linen reported its Q4 and full-year results for the period ending December 31st, 2025. The company delivered a record fiscal year with annual revenue rising 35.7% to $369 million, driven by the successful integration of Stellar Mayan and strong organic growth in the healthcare and hospitality segments. Full-year adjusted EBITDA grew 36.9% to $71.0 million. Adjusted net income for the year was $21.9 million, or $1.98 per share. GAAP EPS was $1.10. For FY2026, we see adjusted EPS of $1.60. All prior figures in the table below are reported on a GAAP basis.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

K-Bro Linen has managed to grow its revenue over past decade, but its GAAP EPS has been quite volatile during this period. In the mid-2010s, EPS was stable as the company invested heavily in modernizing and consolidating its plant network and expanding internationally (including the UK entry in 2017). Those investments weighed on margins and earnings in the 2017–2018 period as new facilities were commissioned and acquired operations were integrated. By 2019, the business saw a recovery in volume and margin normalization, which lifted EPS relative to the transition years.

The 2020 downturn reflects pandemic impacts that collapsed hospitality volumes and increased operating leverage on fixed processing costs, pressuring earnings. The partial rebound in 2021 shows gradual reopening and volume recovery, though inflationary pressures limited the pace of margin improvement as cost increases outpaced pricing in some areas.

The company faced higher input and labor costs in early 2022, but price increases and efficiency gains lifted margins and EPS in 2023. In 2024, it maintained that stronger earnings base with double-digit revenue growth from organic gains and acquisitions (e.g., Shortridge), supporting scale, diversification, and margins. In 2025, EPS was $1.10 as record revenue from Stellar Mayan and strong hospitality demand was partly offset by transaction costs, higher amortization, and dilution from the June equity raise.

Moving forward, we believe EPS can continue to grow at a CAGR of 3% over the medium term, driven by modest price increases, incremental efficiency gains, and bolt-on acquisitions, partially offset by ongoing labor and energy cost inflation in a mature end market.

Regarding the dividend, the company has left the monthly payout rate unchanged at C$0.1 since mid-2014. However, the company has never cut its dividend since it initiated it in 2005, at a rate of C$0.0875. Still any increases have been marginal from there to today's rate. Thus, we don't forecast any dividend growth ahead.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	Now	2031
Avg. P/E	30.8	---	---	31.6	---	---	---	20.2	21.3	23.1	15.9	14.0
Avg. Yld.	2.7%	3.1%	3.1%	3.7%	3.8%	3.1%	3.5%	3.6%	3.2%	3.4%	3.4%	3.3%

K-Bro Linen has traded at fluctuating multiples over the years, because its GAAP EPS has been equally volatile for the reasons explained earlier. Today, the stock trades at just under 16 times our expected adjusted EPS for the year. We can see why this can be viewed as a "fair" multiple for a company operating in a somewhat defensive and niche industry. That said, we believe a P/E of 14 better reflects our growth forecast and rather modest yield in the face of unattractive dividend growth.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2031
Payout	83%	190%	205%	116%	---	---	---	73%	67%	79%	54%	46%

K-Bro operates in an essential, non-discretionary service business as hospitals and hotels need clean linens regardless of economic conditions, which gives the company a relatively stable demand base. This was evident in past downturns, including COVID, when hospitality volumes fell but healthcare remained resilient and the company stayed profitable and cash-flow positive. Its large, modern plant network and dense delivery routes provide scale benefits in cost, logistics, and reliability, and long-term customer relationships create stickiness that smooths results through cycles.

At the same time, this is not a structurally protected industry. While K-Bro's scale gives it an advantage over smaller operators, the service itself is not unique and competition for contracts remains active, which limits long-term excess returns. As a result, the company's strength has come from consistent execution, pricing discipline, and incremental acquisitions rather than from any permanent or overwhelming industry dominance.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Overall, we think K-Bro is best viewed as a well-run, essential service business capable of steady, low-risk compounding through cycles, but not one with the structural characteristics to deliver sustained high-growth or outsized returns. We forecast annualized returns of just 3.5% over the medium term, to be powered by our soft growth expectations and the starting dividend yield, potentially offset by a valuation headwind. In any case, K-Bro earns a sell rating due to lacking progressive dividend growth.
