Overview & Current Events

Lowe's Companies is the second-largest home improvement retailer in the US (after Home Depot). The company, which has a current market capitalization of $143 billion, was founded in 1946 and is headquartered in Mooresville, NC. Lowe's operates or services more than 1,700 home improvement and hardware stores in the U.S. Lowe's trades under the ticker symbol LOW on the NYSE.

On June 2, 2025, Lowe's completed its acquisition of Artisan Design Group (ADG) for $1.325 billion. ADG designs, distributes, and installs interior surface finishes for flooring, cabinets, and countertops. In FY 2024, ADG generated $1.8 billion of revenue. The acquisition expands Lowe's Pro offering into a new distribution channel in a $50 billion market.

On October 9, 2025, Lowe's completed its acquisition of Foundation Building Materials (FBM), for $8.8 billion. FBM is a distributor of interior building products for large residential and commercial professionals in new construction and repair and remodel. It generated $6.5 billion in revenue in 2024.

Lowe's reported fourth quarter 2025 results on February 25th, 2026. Total sales came in at $20.6 billion compared to $18.6 billion in the same quarter a year ago. Comparable sales increased by 1.3%. Adjusted earnings-per-share of $1.98 were 2.6% higher compared to fourth quarter 2024.

The company did not repurchase any of its common stock in the quarter, but it paid out $673 million in dividends.

Lowe's introduced its fiscal 2026 outlook and expects to earn adjusted EPS of $12.25 to $12.75 on total sales of $92 billion to $94 billion. Capex will likely come in at $2.5 billion, and Lowe's expects an operating margin of roughly 11.7%.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2031

Lowe's has increased its earnings-per-share at an attractive pace in recent years. Between 2016 and 2025, Lowe's grew its earnings-per-share at a 12.9% CAGR. But in the recent 5-year period, this rate has decelerated to 6.0% per year.

Earnings-per-share have been driven by comparable store sales growth, increasing margins, and the company's share repurchases, which have lowered the share count meaningfully. Significant buybacks mean that the company's net earnings are split over a lower number of shares, which accelerates growth in per-share net income. Especially when Lowe's valuation is lower, these share repurchases are highly accretive. Lowe's would likely ramp up its buybacks if its valuation declined meaningfully, and in the past, they have made good profits by buying back shares at a lower price.

Lowe's should be able to increase its sales over the coming years, but its earnings-per-share growth will be somewhat lower going forward compared to the last decade. We expect Lowe's to increase earnings per share at a 7% annual growth rate in the next five years.

Lowe's Companies (LOW)

Updated March 6th, 2026 by Quinn Mohammed

Lowe's is a Dividend King - the company has raised the dividend annually for 62 years in a row - and its dividend growth rate was remarkably high in recent years. Lowe's has raised its dividend by 15% per year over the last 5 years. We expect this dividend growth to moderate in the coming years but remain near double-digit territory.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	Now	2031
Avg. P/E	18.6	18.7	18.7	18.9	21.4	20	17.3	19.9	19.8	20.1	20.1	20.0
Avg. Yld.	1.8%	1.9%	1.9%	2.0%	1.7%	1.2%	1.6%	2.0%	1.8%	1.9%	1.9%	2.0%

Lowe's trades at 20.1 times this year's expected earnings-per-share right now, which is higher than its 10-year average of 19.3. The current valuation is still just above our fair value estimate of 20 times expected earnings. As a result, we see the potential for a miniscule valuation headwind due to valuation compression over the intermediate term.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2031
Payout	33%	36%	36%	37%	27%	23%	36%	33%	37%	40%	38%	40%

Lowe's is a Dividend King; the company has raised its dividend annually for 62 years in a row, even during recessions, the great financial crisis, and the covid pandemic. This extraordinarily strong track record, coupled with the fact that Lowe's dividend payout ratio is fairly low, shows that Lowe's is a reliable and low-risk dividend stock where investors do not have to worry about a dividend cut. In addition, many years of dividend growth should be in front of the company.

Lowe's business is somewhat cyclical, but the company performed relatively well during the great financial crisis, nevertheless. Earnings-per-share declined by less than 20%, despite the housing market hit. Lowe's enjoys competitive advantages from scale and brand power as it operates in a duopoly with Home Depot. Neither of the two are expanding their store count significantly, and neither is interested in a price war. Both should remain highly profitable, as the home improvement market in the US is large enough for two companies to make great profits.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Lowe's offers 8.7% annualized total return potential thanks to its strong expected growth performance. Shares are trading just above our estimate of fair value but offer compelling growth potential for both earnings and the dividend. We expect that continued share buybacks will prove fruitful in the long term; however, buybacks are now on pause as Lowe's digests its recent large acquisitions. LOW earns a hold rating.
