Overview & Current Events

Lam Research Corporation (LRCX) was founded in 1980 and headquartered in Fremont, California. The company designs, manufactures, markets, refurbishes, and services semiconductor processing equipment used to fabricate integrated circuits worldwide. Lam is a major supplier of wafer fabrication equipment and services to the semiconductor industry. Its products address various applications, including thin film deposition, single-wafer cleaning, and plasma tech. The company has a market capitalization of $249 billion, over 10,700 employees, and produced roughly $18.4 billion in revenue in 2025.

On January 28th, 2026, Lam Research reported the second quarter results for Fiscal Year 2026. Lam Research Corporation ends its fiscal year at the end of June. The company delivered another strong quarter for the period ended December 28, 2025, reporting revenue of $5.34 billion, up 22% year-over-year and slightly higher than the $5.32 billion from the prior quarter. U.S. GAAP gross margin came in at 49.6% with operating income of 33.9% of revenue and diluted EPS of $1.26, while non-GAAP results were $1.27 per share on a 49.7% gross margin and 34.3% operating margin. Systems revenue, driven by advanced deposition and etch equipment, totaled $3.36 billion, and customer support and related services contributed $1.99 billion, highlighting continued strength in both new equipment and recurring services.

Geographically, the company remained heavily weighted toward Asia, with China contributing 35% of revenue, Taiwan and Korea 20% each, Japan 10%, and Southeast Asia 8%. The U.S. accounted for 5% and Europe 2%. Lam's balance sheet remained solid with cash and equivalents of $6.2 billion and total assets of $21.4 billion. During the quarter, operating activities generated $1.48 billion in cash, which funded $261 million in capital expenditures and $327 million in dividends, alongside $1.47 billion spent on share repurchases.

Looking ahead, projecting revenue of \$5.70 billion $\pm$ \$300 million, a gross margin near 49%, operating income of roughly 34%, and EPS of \$1.35 $\pm$ \$0.10. CEO Tim Archer emphasized that the company's expanding portfolio is supporting the industry transition to smaller, more complex three-dimensional devices and AI-driven demand, positioning Lam to deliver multi-year outperformance despite near-term supply chain and geopolitical uncertainties. The company expects continued growth across both systems and service segments, capitalizing on semiconductor industry trends.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2031
Avg. P/E	12.9	13.2	8.4	19.2	20.3	23.9	11.9	18.9	35.1	23.9	37.5	17.00

Over the past decade, Lam Research has averaged an 18.8x P/E. During trough periods in the semiconductor industry, the company occasionally reported low or negative earnings. We estimate a forward P/E of 17.0x for the company should be a fair value, although it naturally varies through the highly cyclical semiconductor business cycle. However, the company has a higher PE at the current price than our reasonable price estimate. The company has a current PE of 37.5x. The current PE would turn into a 14.7% annualized headwind if the company reverted to its fair PE ratio of 17.0x.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2031

Lam Research is one of the top three semiconductor manufacturing equipment vendors globally, along with Applied Materials and Tokyo Electron. The company supplies equipment to chipmakers and provides service and maintenance support. Due to propriety technologies and a highly concentrated industry, Lam Research maintains high returns on invested capital in most years and has a small economic moat. However, the semiconductor industry is highly volatile due to commodity-like supply and demand characteristics. The sector halts new supply capacity every several years and negatively impacts equipment suppliers' revenues like Lam Research. The company has encountered periods of very low or negative earnings during these occasions. However, it appears to be more profitable during each down cycle as its service revenue continues to smooth out its overall results and the company matures. Lam Research's customer base is narrow, with Intel, Micron, Samsung, SK Hynix, Toshiba, and Taiwan Semiconductor Manufacturing Company making up at least 10% of Lam Research's revenue in recent years. The company has a strong balance sheet with more assets than debt and a total debt/equal ratio of 0.4.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Lam Research is a leader in a growing industry with a strong balance sheet. The company has the potential for an estimated forward negative return of -6.9%, and we consider it to be a hold at the current price. The semiconductor industry is cyclical but expected to grow strongly over the next decade. Cloud computing, machine learning, autonomous driving, and the internet of things continue to grow in scale and relevance. With a low dividend payout ratio, the company pays a modest but fast-growing dividend and appears to be maturing into a solid dividend stock.
