Overview & Current Events

America Movil (sometimes stylized as América Móvil) is a Mexican telecommunications company based in Mexico City. It is the largest wireless telecommunications provider in Latin America based on subscriber count and has the largest market share in Mexico and the third-largest market share in Brazil. The stock trades on the Mexican Stock Exchange under the ticker AMXL, but U.S. investors can purchase it through American Depository Receipts which trade on the New York Stock Exchange under the ticker AMX. America Movil trades with a market capitalization of US$79 billion and is majority owned by Carlos Slim and family, the richest man in Mexico and one of the wealthiest individuals in the world.

In late April, America Movil reported (4/21/26) financial results for the first quarter of fiscal 2026. It added 3.0 million postpaid subscribers in the quarter. Brazil, Colombia and Peru were the main growth contributors. Service revenue grew 5% and EBITDA grew 8% over the prior year's quarter, at constant exchange rates. As a result, the company grew its earnings-per-share 47%, from $0.30 to $0.44, though it missed the analysts' estimates by $0.01. On the other hand, the excessive losses from currency exchange rates, which were recorded in the fourth quarter of 2024, are indicative of the risk of the stock related to currency exchange rates.

Despite its dominant business position in Mexico, America Movil has exhibited a remarkably volatile performance record, partly due to the inevitable currency fluctuations. The company was also greatly affected by the pandemic in 2020. However, as the company has recovered from that crisis, we expect 4.0% average annual earnings-per-share growth over the next five years, partly thanks to the rollout of the 5G network of the company. We find it prudent not to assume a higher growth rate due to the high comparison base formed by the high earnings expected this year.

On the other hand, we reiterate that our America Movil projections have significant uncertainty due to (1) potential fluctuations in the Peso-USD exchange rate and (2) the intention of the Mexican Federal Telecommunications Institute to loosen the company's dominant grip on Mexico's telecommunications industry, where it has a market share of approximately 60% and generates nearly one-third of its total revenues.

Updated April 22nd, 2026 by Aristofanis Papadatos

America Movil is trading at a price-to-earnings ratio of 15.3, which is higher than our fair value estimate of 13.0 times earnings. If the stock trades at a price-to-earnings ratio of 13.0 in five years, it will incur a -3.2% annualized drag in its returns due to the contraction of its valuation level. Dividend investors should also note that America Movil is subject to Mexico's 10% withholding tax on cross-border dividend payments.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2031
Payout	193%	78.6%	43.4%	34.9%	57.4%	13.9%	37.3%	37.6%	116%	35.2%	32.9%	31.4%

America Movil benefits from being the largest telecommunications company in its operating geography. In addition, America Movil is rated A3 by Moody's, A- by S&P, and A- by Fitch. While the company carries a significant amount of debt, just like almost all the companies in this sector, its net debt is $58.3 billion, which is 74% of the market capitalization of the stock, and hence it is manageable.

However, investors should be aware of the greatest risk of America Movil, namely its exposure to the exchange rate of the Peso vs. USD. Currencies of weak economies tend to depreciate vs. the dollar in the long run. This had proved to be the case for the Peso until early last year, as it had significantly depreciated vs. the dollar over the past decade, though the peso has strengthened vs. the dollar due to the excessive tariffs imposed by the U.S. since early last year. The long-term depreciation of the peso is a material risk factor, which can greatly reduce the long-term returns of the stock even if the company exhibits great business performance.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

America Movil has a dominant position in its business but it is somewhat richly valued right now. The stock could offer a 2.9% average annual return over the next five years thanks to 4.0% growth of earnings-per-share and its 2.2% dividend, partly offset by a potential -3.2% annualized valuation drag. We maintain our hold rating, as we need a much higher expected return to upgrade the stock to "buy" due to its volatile business performance and its currency risk.
