Overview & Current Events

J.B. Hunt Transport Services (JBHT) is a freight carrier company that primarily operates large semi-trailer trucks (semis). The business operates more than 115,000 pieces of company-owned trailing equipment in its fleet. The business is split into 5 segments – Intermodal (JBI), which operates the largest drayage fleet (vans 53 feet long) in North America, Dedicated Contract Services (DCS), which offers design and implementation of supply chain solutions and on-site management, Integrated Capacity Solutions (ICS), which ships domestic and international containers across North America, Truckload (JBT), which is one of the largest capacity networks in North America, allowing users to GPS track trailers, and Final Mile Services (FMS), which provides final destination delivery and installation. Intermodal is the largest of these divisions, followed by Dedicated Contract Services and Integrated Capacity Solutions. The company enjoyed strong demand for logistics services over the past couple of years as American consumers spent money at a record pace. However, that momentum went into reverse with EPS dropping sharply since the 2022 peak of $9.21.

On April 15th, 2026, J.B. Hunt reported its Q1 2026 results. Q1 earnings per share of $1.49 jumped from the $1.17 reported in the prior year, and topped expectations by four cents. Revenues of $3.06 billion rose 4.6% and topped expectations. This was an excellent result for J.B. Hunt, as it was able to combine the benefits of recent cost savings efforts with a return to top-line growth after the past three years' challenging results.

J.B. Hunt had been in a downward earnings trend since 2023. However, the company has turned the corner now, with the past two quarters coming in on a much more favorable trajectory. It was particularly impressive that J.B. Hunt was able to report a 10% rise in full-year 2025 earnings despite a 1% decline in revenues for the year, and Q1 kept that momentum going. We had already been forecasting a sizable jump in earnings per share this year, however we have bumped up our estimate a bit more following this excellent Q1 result.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2031

Shares¹	111	110	109	106	106	105	104	103	101	98	97	95

Since 2016, J.B. Hunt has seen its earnings-per-share grow at an average annualized rate of 5.4%. The company had enjoyed unusually rapid earnings growth up through 2022. The past few years have been challenging for J.B. Hunt and the trucking sector more generally. Over the long term, in more normalized macroeconomic conditions, we expect J.B. Hunt to be able to grow its earnings at 4% per year.

Over the past five years, dividend payments have grown at a rate of 8.8% annually. We expect that the dividend growth rate will slow down in-line with the company's earnings growth. To that point, J.B. Hunt's most recent dividend hike, in January 2026, was a modest 2.3% increase from 44 cents to 45 cents per share quarterly.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	Now	2031
Avg. P/E	21.6	26.0	20.7	20.0	25.1	23.9	21.0	23.5	29.4	27.3	33.3	23.0
Avg. Yld.	1.1%	0.9%	0.8%	1.0%	0.9%	0.7%	0.9%	0.9%	0.9%	1.1%	0.7%	1.1%

Over the past 10 years, J.B. Hunt has averaged a P/E ratio of 23.9, and over the past five years, the stock has averaged a P/E ratio of 25.0. J.B. Hunt shares have rebounded in recent months. This has pushed the P/E back up to 33x, which is above our longer-term estimate of 23.

J.B. Hunt has long offered a dividend yield of between 0.7% and 1.1% over the past decade. The current 0.7% yield is at the bottom end of the historical range.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2031
Payout	23%	25%	17%	20%	23%	17%	17%	24%	31%	29%	24%	24%

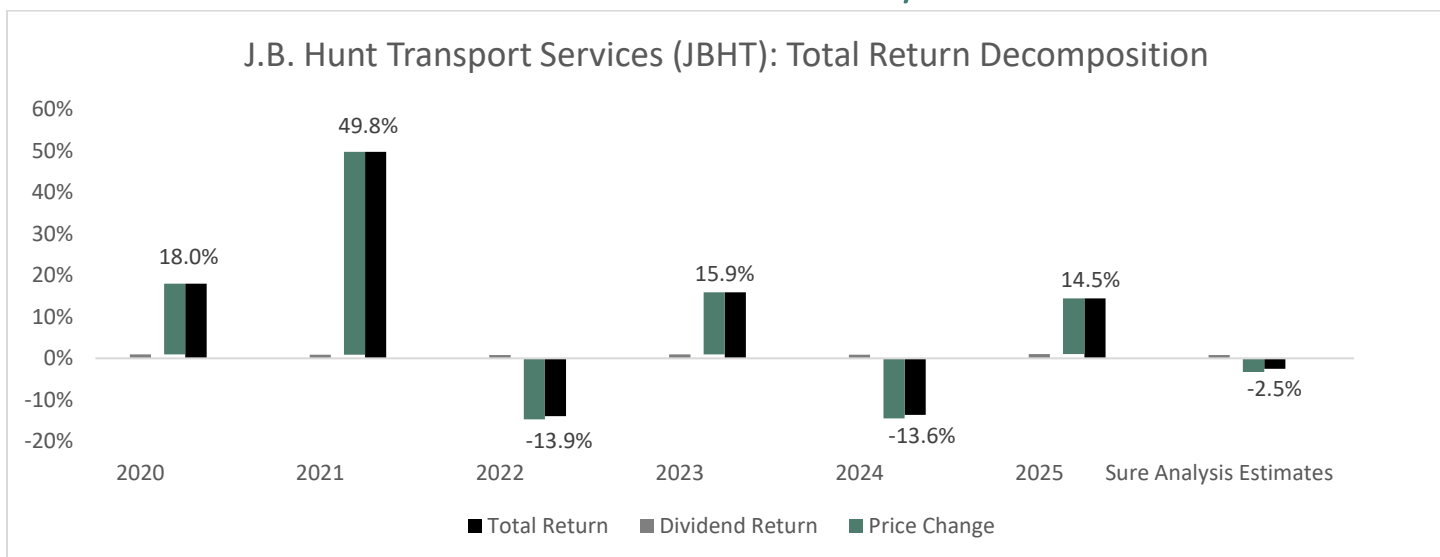

J.B. Hunt has averaged a roughly 23% payout ratio over the past decade. We expect it will continue to increase its dividend in line with earnings, leading to a stable payout ratio. Trucking is historically a cyclical industry prone to downturns during a recession. However, J.B. Hunt's diversified lines of business and large scale historically have given it a good deal of insulation from economic shocks as compared to most of its peers.

J.B. Hunt has a fair amount of leverage on its balance sheet. S&P Global rates the company's debt at BBB+. The balance sheet is well within investment-grade parameters, but conditions could change in a prolonged recession.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Given the economic headwinds and continuing demand shortfalls in the trucking industry, J.B. Hunt has faced a challenging couple of years. The past two quarters of earnings results showed real signs of progress, however, as profit margins jumped and now revenues have finally turned the corner as well. That said, investors may be getting ahead of themselves here. With the recent stock price surge, JBHT's stock has moved well above our fair value estimate. Simply put, it's challenging to justify a 33x P/E ratio for a trucking company. J.B. Hunt has a -2.5% annualized return outlook and shares earn a hold rating today.
