Overview & Current Events

Masco Corporation is a world leader in the design, manufacture, and distribution of a wide variety of home improvement and building products. The company's leading brands include Behr paint, Hotspring spas, Kichler decorative and outdoor lighting, and Delta faucets, bath, and shower fixtures. Masco also sells branded decorative and functional hardware and waterproofing products. The company has two reportable segments, including Plumbing Products and Decorative Architectural Products. Masco's customers include plumbing, heating, and hardware wholesalers as well as hardware stores, home centers, and online retailers.

On February 10th, 2026, Masco announced that it was raising its quarterly dividend 3.2% to $0.32.

On April 22nd, Masco reported first quarter results for the period ending March 31st, 2026. For the quarter, revenue grew 6.7% to $1.92 billion, which topped estimates by $90 million. Adjusted earnings-per-share of $1.04 compared favorably to $0.87 in the prior year and was $0.16 better than expected.

Plumbing products grew 9% to $1.36 billion while revenue for Decorative Architectural Products of $554 million was unchanged. By regions, North America improved 5% while the international segment was up 1%. Gross margin was unchanged at 35.8% while the operating margin expanded 60 basis points to 16.5%. The company returned $267 million to shareholders through dividends and stock buybacks during the quarter.

Masco reaffirmed prior guidance for the year as well, with the company still excepting adjusted EPS in a range of $4.10 to $4.30 for 2026.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Masco's earnings-per-share have a compound annual growth rate of 11.7% since 2016, but growth has not always been linear. Earnings growth has been somewhat erratic over the last decade, but the company has experienced a sharp rise in its profitability over this period. We are comfortable projecting earnings-per-share growth of 8% annually through 2031.

The company has aggressively repurchased its own stock over the last decade, retiring 5% of its share count annually from 330 million in 2016 to the current share count of 204 million. Future repurchases should aid EPS growth as well.

Masco has increased its dividend for 13 consecutive years, a strong showing given the ups and downs of the company's historical performance. Dividend growth had been robust for much of this period, with the company growing its dividend by 13.7% and 8.5% annually since 2016 and 2021, respectively. However, dividend growth has slowed substantially in recent years.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	Now	2031
Avg. P/E	21.5	26	12.3	14.8	12.1	42.9	12.9	16.7	17.7	16.0	17.6	19.0
Avg. Yld.	1.2%	0.9%	1.5%	1.0%	1.0%	1.0%	1.2%	1.7%	1.6%	2.0%	1.7%	1.6%

Shares of Masco have increased $2, or 2.8%, since our February 25th, 2026 report. As a result, Masco trades at 17.6 times our expected earnings-per-share for 2026. This is below our target P/E of 19. Multiple expansion could add 1.5% to annual returns if the stock were to reach our target P/E by 2031.

Masco has never been a high yielding name, but the current yield is above the long-term average yield of 1.3%.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2031
Payout	27%	23%	19%	23%	18%	46%	31%	28%	28%	31%	30%	30%

Masco performed poorly during the 2007 to 2009 period, with the company posting an earnings-per-share loss each year of the Great Recession. It also took the company several years to return to profitability. More recently, Masco performed much better under adverse economic conditions. The company's earnings-per-share grew 38% in 2020 even in the face of the global pandemic, though results did fall significantly the following year. The company benefits from market leading products that consumers trust. We expect that Masco would suffer declines during the next recession, though it's likely the weakness would not be as extreme as during the Great Recession given the turmoil of that period.

Masco's dividend can be considered safe, though the slowing growth rate is something to monitor. The company's payout ratio provides evidence that the dividend is well covered.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Following first quarter earnings results, Masco is expected to offer a total annual return of 11.1% through 2031, down from our prior estimate of 11.7%. Our projected return stems from an 8% earnings growth rate, a starting yield of 1.7%, and a low single-digit contribution from multiple expansion. Tariffs projected some uncertainty into Masco's business last year, which was already volatile at times. The company did reaffirm solid guidance for 2026 and its long-term track record is solid. We maintain our five-year price target $7 to $117 for Masco as a result of EPS estimates for the year. We continue to rate the stock as a buy due to projected returns and a solid dividend risk score.
