Overview & Current Events

Stewart Information Services is a global title insurance and real estate services company. Stewart provides services to both home buyers and sellers, residential and commercial real estate professionals, and others. The company's business segments include title insurance and related services, real estate solutions, and corporate. The company generates annual revenue of nearly $2.9 billion and has a current market capitalization of $2.2 billion.

On June 2nd, 2025, Stewart raised its quarterly dividend 5% to $0.525, extending the company's dividend growth streak to five consecutive years.

On April 22nd, 2026, Stewart reported first quarter results for the period ending March 31st, 2026. For the quarter, revenue grew 27.7% to $781.3 million, which was $35 million better than expected. Adjusted earnings-per-share of $0.78 compared to $0.25 in the prior year, but this was $0.09 below estimates.

Revenue for the Title segment grew 21% to $603.2 million for the quarter. The improvement was once again the result of increased demand for services, especially in the direct and agency title operations. Non-commercial direct title revenue was higher by 8% to $169.7 million while commercial direct title direct sales grew 34% to $100.5 million. In total, direct title revenue was up by 17% to $270.2 million. Investment income grew 10% to $13.8 million. Adjusted pretax income surged 119% to $25.2 million, leading to a 190-basis point expansion in the adjusted pretax margin to 4.1%. Real Estate Solutions revenue improved 66% to $161.4 million due again to demand for credit information services and acquisitions. The adjusted pretax margin expanded 260 basis points to 12.5%.

Stewart is projected to earn $6.00 per share in 2026, up from $5.77 previously. This would be a 48% increase from the prior year. We have updated our forecast accordingly.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Stewart's earnings-per-share have been prone to wide swings over the last decade. Despite the expectation for a significant increase this year, EPS has actually fallen over the last five years. This year's estimate, if it were to be accurate, would still be well below peak earnings-per-share. We project that earnings-per-share will grow at a rate of 5% annually through 2031, though we note that growth may not be linear. Another item that could impact results is that Stewart has diluted its share count by almost 3% annually over the last 10 years.

Updated April 27th, 2026, by Nathan Parsh

Though the company did pause growth from 2017 through 2020, the dividend still has a compound annual growth rate of 6.1% over the last decade and 8.9% over the last five years. We expect that the dividend will grow in-line with earnings-per-share as the payout ratio has averaged a reasonable 57% over the last decade.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	Now	2031
Avg. P/E	24.7	22.8	20.6	12.3	7.8	6.7	3.6	9.9	25.9	17.3	12.0	10.0
Avg. Yld.	2.7%	2.9%	2.8%	3.0%	3.3%	2.1%	2.9%	4.0%	2.9%	2.9%	2.9%	3.5%

Shares of Stewart have increased $1, or 1.4%, since our February 9th, 2026 report. The valuation, much like earnings-per-share, have seen aggressive swings in opposing directions over the last decade. Since 2016, the stock has an average price-to-earnings ratio of 15.2, but this contracts to 12.7 when looking at the last five years. We believe a target price-to-earnings ratio of 10 is an appropriate starting place for shares of Stewart. Therefore, investors could face a headwind from multiple contraction given that the stock is trading at 12.0x expected EPS for this year. Reverting to this valuation by 2031 would reduce annual returns by 3.6% over this period.

Shares yield 2.9% currently, which is just below the long-term average yield of 3.0%.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2031
Payout	66%	58%	60%	36%	19%	12%	28%	167%	75%	51%	35%	35%

Stewart does not appear to hold any significant advantages relative to its peers. Operating in the insurance industry is difficult as the company has many peers, all of whom offer similar services. Having a real estate solutions business does help differ Stewart from other insurance companies slightly, but the industry can be cutthroat as insurers try to capture market share.

The dividend is likely safe given its current payout ratio, which is below the long-term average of 57%. The company did pause its dividend growth for several years in the mid-2010s, but growth has been aggressive in recent years.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

After first quarter results, Stewart is projected to return 4.3% annually through 2031, up from our prior estimate of a return of 3.9%. This estimate stems from an earnings-per-share growth rate of 5% and the current yield of 2.9%, which is offset by expected multiple contraction. We maintain our hold rating on shares of Stewart Information Services due to expected returns and a mediocre dividend risk score.
