Overview & Current Events

Founded in 1991, Hamilton Lane Incorporated is a global private markets investment solutions provider that primarily serves institutional investors. Secondly, HLNE also has a private wealth channel for non-institutional investors (e.g., family offices and high-net-worth individuals). Globally, the company operates across nearly two dozen offices in the United States, Canada, Europe, Asia, the Middle East, Latin America, and Australia. HLNE provides clients with a variety of services, including private equity and private credit, real estate, venture capital, and infrastructure. The company's investment solutions are comprised of funds managed by third-party managers, direct investments alongside funds, and acquisitions of secondary stakes in funds. As of March 31, 2026, HLNE had $1.05 trillion in assets under management/advisement (AUM/A). Of that amount, $905.3 billion were assets under advisement, with the remaining $141.8 billion in assets under management. In the fiscal year 2026, which ended March 31st, 2026, no single client made up more than 2% of the company's management and advisory fee revenue. Furthermore, the top 10 clients only generated roughly 11% of management and advisory fee revenue in FY 2026.

On May 21, HLNE released its earnings report for the fiscal fourth quarter ended March 31, 2026. The company's total revenue decreased by 2.2% over the year-ago period to $193.6 million in the quarter. The company's combined AUM/A rose by 9.3% year-over-year during the quarter. The ongoing shift to specialized funds and the Evergreen platform (AUM up 70% YOY to over $16 billion) helped management and advisory fees jump 21.4% higher over the year-ago period to $155.2 million for the quarter. HLNE's incentive fees dropped 45.3% year-over-year to $38.4 million in the quarter. That was a matter of timing and transaction velocity. This is because, while private equity exit value rebounded almost 50% globally in 2025, the realization of those exits takes time to filter down to the advisory level. HLNE's non-GAAP EPS climbed 23.1% higher over the year-ago period to $1.49 during the quarter. That topped the analyst consensus for the quarter by $0.06. On the same day, HLNE upped its quarterly dividend per share by 11.1% from $0.54 to $0.60. This marks its ninth consecutive year of dividend growth.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Shares¹	52.8	53.1	53.3	53.5	53.6	53.7	53.7	54.0	54.4	55.5	55.5	58.0

Since its IPO in 2017, HLNE has compounded its non-GAAP EPS by around 23% annually through FY 2026. The company's non-GAAP earnings base is several times larger now, however. As a result, we expect growth to materially decelerate from that rate to about 12% each year through FY 2032, off an anticipated FY 2027 base of $6.22. To be clear, HLNE's growth prospects remain encouraging with organic growth via new clients and greater existing client account balances. Bolt-on acquisitions are still another growth avenue for HLNE. Such a level of non-GAAP EPS growth should also enable annual dividend growth of around 10% over the next several years.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2027	2032
Avg. P/E	20.5	25.7	22.9	24.4	33.3	17.8	23.1	28.8	29.2	16.0	14.4	24.0
Avg. Yld.	-	1.9%	2.0%	2.2%	1.4%	1.8%	2.2%	1.6%	1.3%	2.3%	2.7%	1.5%

HLNE's P/E ratio has varied from as low as the high teens to as much as the high-30s in its corporate history. Over that time, the average P/E ratio was approximately 24. We still believe this is a reasonable fair value multiple going forward because of HLNE's double-digit growth potential. At today's current-year P/E ratio of 14.4, HLNE's shares have swung to a deep discount on concerns tied to the private equity cycle and the vulnerability of retail evergreen funds in a market correction.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2027	2032
Payout	-	43%	45%	55%	46%	32%	48%	45%	39%	37%	39%	35%

Throughout its corporate history, HLNE has done right by its clients, generating excellent returns. This has earned the company a trusted reputation as a leader within its industry, which helps it to keep existing clients and attract new ones. That also explains how HLNE has consistently grown its non-GAAP EPS over the years.

In FY 2026, the company's interest coverage ratio was 67.4x. Additionally, the dividend payout ratio is positioned to be in the high-30% to low-40% range in FY 2027. That should help HLNE to build on its nine-year dividend growth streak for the foreseeable future.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

HLNE's 2.7% dividend yield, 12.0% annual non-GAAP EPS growth prospects, and 10.7% annual valuation multiple upside potential could deliver 25.5% annual total returns through FY 2032. That's why we're reiterating our Buy rating.
