Overview & Current Events

Hawkins is a diversified chemical company founded in 1938 and it went public in 1972. It specializes in manufacturing and selling value-added and bulk ingredients, chemicals, and services to industrial, manufacturer, and municipal customers. The company operates in three segments: Water Treatment (~50% of revenue), Food & Health Sciences (~30% of revenue), and Industrial (~20% of revenue). Almost all revenue is from the United States with 66 facilities in 26 states. Key brands are Stevia, Hereditium, Fermentalg, Lipfoods, Epax, Aquamin, Covico, Panmol, pomma, nippi, and the Enzymology Research Center. The CEO is Patrick Hawkins, a member of the founding family. He owns about 1.5% of the company. Total revenue was $974.4M in fiscal year 2025.

Hawkins reported Q4 FY 2026 results on May 14th, 2026. Revenue increased 8% to $265.9M from $245.3M, while diluted earnings per share declined 5% to $0.74 from $0.78 on a year-over-year basis on acquisitions, offset by amortization costs and interest expense related to the WaterSurplus acquisition. Water Treatment segment revenue rose 16% to $122.3M from $105M on acquisitions and increased volumes. The Food & Health Sciences segment revenue was flat at $88.6M from $88.3M in the prior year on higher volumes, offset by lower pricing. Industrial segment revenue increased 6% to $55.0M from $52.0M in comparable periods on higher volumes.

In FY 2026, the company acquired WaterSurplus, Hendrickson Enterprises, PhilTech, StillWaters Technology, RedBird Chemical, and Aqua-Chem, adding to its water treatment business.

Hawkins' revenue has trended up in the past decade driven by organic growth and many acquisitions. The company typically acquires a few smaller firms per year incrementally adding to revenue and earnings per share. Since 2011, Hawkins has acquired 25 companies with 22 of those in water treatment. The strategy has proven successful over time, and operating income has grown for 31 consecutive quarters. The company likely has many more years of growth ahead of it. Bulk and value-added chemicals, ingredients, and services continue to grow. In addition, many small chemical companies exist throughout the United States as acquisition targets, especially in municipal water treatment. We are expecting revenue and earnings per share to grow at ~8% annually on average, less than the past decade, because of inflationary headwinds causing rising input costs and higher interest rates on debt.

Hawkins has a 41-year history of paying a dividend and a 21-year streak of increasing it. The dividend is the second highest priority for capital allocation. The payout ratio is conservative at approximately 18%, leaving much room for future increases. It also provides confidence about the dividend safety in a cyclical industry. We anticipate an ~8% growth rate per year, near the average for the past decade.

Valuation Analysis

Avg. P/E	27.9	15.1	--	19.1	19.1	20.1	15.8	24.6	34.2	28.1	37.2	22.0

Hawkins' stock price is up again since our last report despite missing estimates. We raised our fiscal year 2026 earnings estimate to match analyst consensus. Our fair value multiple is now 22X, near the 10-year average. Our fair value estimate is $94. Our 5-year price target is $138. The equity trades well above our estimate.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2031
Payout	48%	41%	--	40%	35%	26%	23%	21%	17%	16%	18%	18%

Hawkins' competitive advantage is its strong supplier and customer relationships. Additionally, the firm emphasizes its people and culture. The average tenure is 7 years, and the median salary is ~$94k, seemingly on the higher end for a chemical company. Long tenure ensures Hawkins' customers and suppliers deal with the same employee over time.

The chemical industry is not recession resistant. Hawkins Industrial and Health and Nutrition segments face challenges during recessions. The Water Treatment segment revenue and profits are less cyclical. However, the company's earnings have declined in the past before recovering.

The company makes use of debt for acquisitions. It has no current long-term debt, and $244M of long-term debt that is offset by $3.9M of cash and equivalents. Interest coverage is about 8.52X, and the leverage ratio is ~1.49X.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

At present we are forecasting -2.1% annualized total return over the next five years from a dividend yield of 0.5%, 8% EPS growth, and -10.0% P/E multiple contraction. Hawkins focuses on growth by investing in the business and tuck-in acquisitions. We expect the firm to maintain this strategy despite rising debt. It is also returning cash to shareholders through consistent dividends and incremental share repurchases. Despite the company's attractive characteristics, the current share price accounts for the gains we envision for the next five years. Our rating for this equity is a 'hold'.
