Overview & Current Events

Thomson Reuters Corporation is a global financial information and data solutions provider for businesses and professionals in the fields of finance, accounting, tax, and media. Thomson Reuters was created in 2008 when the Thomson Corporation purchased the British company Reuters Group. The company is cross-listed in Toronto and New York, where it trades under the ticker TRI on both exchanges. Accordingly, all figures referenced in this report are in USD and refer to the company's U.S.-listed common equity. Thomson Reuters transferred its listing from the NYSE to the Nasdaq on February 25th, 2025.

On December 2nd, 2024, the company completed the sale of its FindLaw business to Internet Brands.

In January 2025, Thomson acquired cPaperless, LLC (SafeSend) for $600 million cash, for its tax automation capabilities.

In February 2026, Thomson Reuters announced a 10% increase to the dividend to $2.62 per share, which marked the 33rd consecutive annual dividend increase.

On May 4th, 2026, Thomson returned $605 million to shareholders, reducing its outstanding shares by 6.5 million, and paid a special distribution of $1.44 per share.

Thomson Reuters reported first quarter 2026 results on May 5th, 2026, for the period ending March 31st, 2026. For the quarter, total company revenue grew 10% year-over-year to $2.09 billion, of which the majority (77%) was recurring revenues. Thomson Reuters produced adjusted EPS of $1.23 per share compared to adjusted EPS of $1.12 in Q1 2025.

For 2026, Thomson Reuters still forecasts total revenue growth of 7.5% to 8.0%, adjusted EBITDA margin growth of 100 basis points, and free cash flow of $2.1 billion.

In January 2021, Thomson Reuters sold Refinitiv to LSEG, then set off on a two-year Change Program, which resulted in the company transforming itself from a holding company to an operating company. Upon completing this program, Thomson Reuters became a content-driven technology company rather than a content provider.

At the end of Q1 2026, Thomson held approximately $400 million in cash and cash equivalents to target acquisitions that could boost its growth and repurchase its shares. Thomson is executing its "Build, Partner, Buy" strategy wherein it is investing more than $200 million per year in AI. As part of this strategy, it recently completed the bolt-on acquisitions of Safe Sign, Materia, SafeSend, Additive, and Noetica to improve its AI capabilities in Legal and Tax & Accounting. It has also recently launched new products, including CoCounsel Legal, as well as Deep Research on Westlaw.

Updated May 9th, 2026 by Quinn Mohammed

The company has made it clear that share repurchases are a priority, which will help drive earnings-per-share higher over the long term. In 2022, 2023, 2024, and 2025, Thomson repurchased $1.28B, $1.08B, $0.639B, and $1.0B of its shares.

Finally, Thomson Reuters completed the sale of its stake in LSEG as of Q2 2024. In 2023, TRI sold 56 million shares for gross proceeds of $5.5 billion. It returned some of this to shareholders through a return of capital transaction, a cash distribution of $4.67 per share and a reverse stock split which reduced the share count. In H1 2024, Thomson Reuters sold 16 million more shares of LSEG for $1.8 billion.

Between 2026 and 2031, we expect Thomson Reuters to grow its earnings-per-share by 12% annually.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	Now	2031
Avg. P/E	29.9	23.2	64.4	8.9	33.1	15.3	40.7	37.1	43.0	43.6	21.0	30.0
Avg. Yld.	2.5%	2.4%	3.2%	2.4%	1.9%	1.6%	1.5%	1.5%	1.3%	1.1%	2.8%	1.6%

We believe the stock's fair value could be 30.0 times earnings, but shares are trading at just 21.0 times estimated earnings due to worries that competing AI tools may take away some of Thomson's market share. This valuation is significantly lower than the 5-year average of 35.9 and 10-year average of 33.9. As a result, we forecast 7.4% average annual P/E multiple expansion over the next five years. We are forecasting 8% dividend growth as the company is targeting a 50% to 60% dividend payout ratio.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

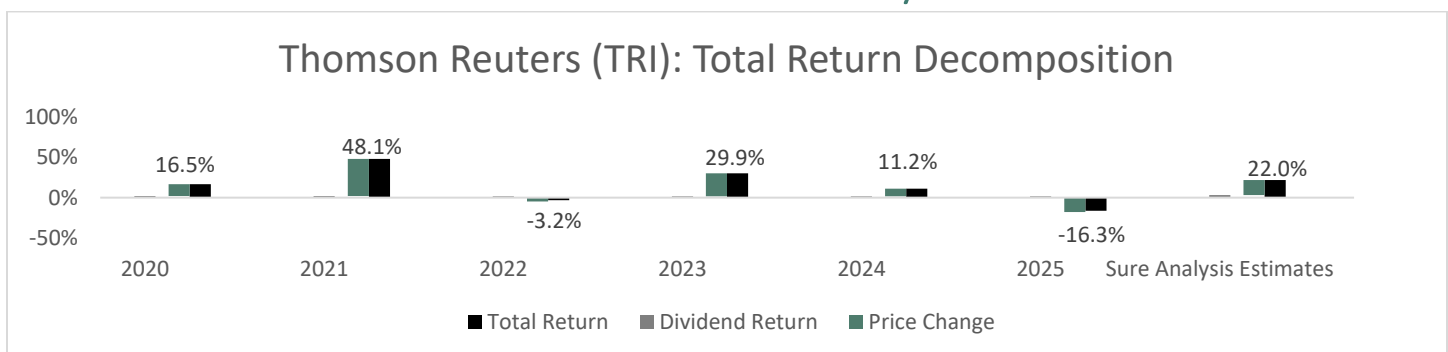

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2031
Payout	76%	55%	185%	46%	68%	14%	68%	56%	57%	61%	59%	49%

Qualitatively, Thomson Reuters' strongest competitive advantage is its brand recognition, which provides it with strong pricing power in the competitive world of financial information. The company's payout ratio appears to be safe today, and we expect the 33-year annual dividend streak to continue. TRI was founded during the last recession, so it is difficult to know exactly how much its business was impacted. As Thomson Reuters generates most of its revenue from selling information and software solutions electronically and on a subscription basis (with ~80% of revenue recurring), the business has historically been resilient, and this resiliency has benefited them throughout the pandemic impact.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

We see total annual returns for Thomson Reuters coming in at 22.0%, stemming from 12% earnings-per-share growth, the 2.8% dividend yield, and 7.4% P/E multiple expansion. The company has completed its Change Program, and now brands itself as a content-driven technology company. For the first time in a while, shares trade below our estimate of fair value due to potential competition in legal software driven by AI. We are maintaining TRI as a buy.
