Overview & Current Events

ABM Industries is a leading provider of facility solutions, which includes janitorial, electrical & lighting, energy solutions, facilities engineering, HVAC & mechanical, landscape & turf, and parking. The company employs about 117,000 people in more than 350 offices throughout the United States and various international locations, primarily in Canada. ABM Industries has increased its dividend for 58 consecutive years, which makes the company a Dividend King. ABM Industries is headquartered in New York, NY.

ABM Industries reported its second quarter earnings results on June 5th. The company announced that its revenues totaled $2.3 billion during the quarter, which was up 10% versus the previous year's quarter and which beat estimates by $90 million. The revenue performance was better than during the previous quarter, in which revenues had been up 6% on a year-over-year basis. ABM Industries was not able to keep its margins at the same level as during the previous year's quarter, as its EBITDA margin declined slightly year-over-year, to 5.7%.

ABM Industries was able to generate earnings-per-share of $0.90 during the fiscal second quarter, which was above the analyst consensus estimate. ABM Industries' earnings-per-share were slightly higher versus the previous year's quarter on an adjusted basis. ABM Industries' guidance range for the current fiscal year, 2026, has been reiterated during the Q2 earnings call. Earnings-per-share are expected in a range of $3.85 to $4.15 on an adjusted basis, with a guidance midpoint of $4.00, which would be a record for the company, and which implies a quite nice earnings-per-share growth rate of around 16% for the current year.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2031

ABM Industries' earnings-per-share have compounded at 9% over the last decade, which is quite attractive, while the earnings-per-share growth rate was a little lower over the last 15 years. ABM Industries' profits have grown relatively consistently, as profits have risen during most years of the last decade, with the exception of 2023 when the company posted a small earnings decline. This is a strong feat that underlines how non-cyclical ABM Industries' business model is. Prior to that, the last year during which its profits declined on a year-over-year basis was 2003. ABM Industries was even able to grow its earnings-per-share during the Great Recession and the COVID pandemic. Because of this recession performance track record, we believe ABM Industries should be able to do well during future economic downturns, too.

Acquisitions have expanded ABM Industries' regularly in the past, and we believe that the company will continue to grow its business both organically and via acquisitions in the future, too. Since ABM's balance sheet is very solid, financing future takeovers shouldn't be a problem. The company has also been buying back shares regularly in the recent past, and we believe that buybacks will be beneficial for ABM's earnings-per-share growth in the future, too. We estimate that earnings-per-share will grow at a mid-single-digit pace going forward.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	Now	2031
Avg. P/E	19.2	24.0	16.4	17.6	14.4	12.3	12.4	11.1	14.8	12.5	11.0	12.0
Avg. Yld.	2.0%	1.5%	2.3%	2.0%	2.1%	1.7%	1.7%	2.3%	1.7%	2.5%	2.6%	2.3%

ABM Industries trades at eleven times this year's forecasted earnings right now. We believe that shares are trading slightly below fair value right now, which is why multiple expansion will likely be a tailwind for total returns going forward. ABM Industries' dividend yield stands at 2.6% right now, which is an above-average yield compared to the past.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2031
Payout	38%	39%	37%	35%	30%	21%	21%	25%	27%	31%	29%	28%

ABM Industries has increased its dividend consistently for decades, but not at an overly high growth rate. This has made its dividend payout ratio decline slightly throughout the last decade, as earnings growth outpaced ABM Industries' dividend growth. Due to the low dividend payout ratio and its very stable, recession-resilient business model, ABM Industries' dividend looks very safe. ABM Industries would likely not be harmed during a future recession in a meaningful way, which is why we believe it is a low-risk investment from that perspective.

ABM Industries is one of the biggest companies in its industry, and its history of making acquisitions has enhanced its scale advantages further. It is likely that the company will continue to make acquisitions to increase its size further whenever the company finds a valuable target that can be acquired at a fair price, which should strengthen its market position and scale advantages over time.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

ABM Industries is active in a somewhat unspectacular industry, but this does not mean that the stock is a bad investment. ABM Industries has been a great low-risk dividend growth investment in the past. We believe that the company will continue to grow its profits at a solid pace in the long run. Based on attractive forecasted total returns and a discount to fair value, we rate ABM a buy at current prices.
