Overview & Current Events

Dynex Capital, Inc. (DX) is a mortgage real estate investment trust (mREIT) with a $3.1 billion market capitalization, founded in 1987 and headquartered in Glen Allen, Virginia. The company specializes in investing in agency and non-agency mortgage-backed securities (MBS) on a leveraged basis, including residential MBS, commercial MBS (CMBS), and interest-only securities. DX focuses on agency MBS backed by Fannie Mae/Freddie Mac (government-sponsored) and Ginnie Mae (government-guaranteed). With 237.4 million shares outstanding and a monthly dividend structure, it serves income-focused investors seeking mortgage market exposure. The company's internally managed structure reduces conflicts of interest and operational expenses. As of Jun. 30, 2026, DX had a portfolio of $27.6 billion in MBS positions and maintained leverage of 8.1x shareholders' equity.

On July 20th, 2026, DX released its earnings report for the second quarter ended Jun. 30, 2026. The mREIT's earnings available for distribution (EAD) per share jumped 63.6% over the year-ago period to $0.36 during the quarter. That came in $0.02 above the analyst consensus in the quarter. Over the last 12 months, DX has been aggressively expanding its total investment portfolio (up 40%+ YOY). Alongside a favorable shift in net interest spreads, management locked in higher-yielding RMBS with coupons ranging from 5% to 6%. This is what led DX's economic net interest spread to expand by two basis points sequentially and 21 basis points over the year-ago period to 1.17% for the quarter.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2031

Over the years, DX has been challenged by two extremes: Zero interest rate policy (where spreads were thin) and the rapid hike era that began in 2022 (where the inverted curve crushed margins). As rates largely stabilize, that will make it more attainable for the company to deliver more consistent spreads. We also believe that the scale has now reached a point where the internally managed efficiency can start to benefit (or at least be neutral) to the per-share line, rather than dilutive. That's why we think EAD per share can grow by 2.5% annually through 2031, off an anticipated 2026 base of $1.40.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	Now	2031
Avg. P/E	8.4	9.1	7.8	9.1	8.4	8.5	11.1	16.5	7.7	10.7	9.3	9.0
Avg. Yld.	12.8%	10.7%	12.4%	14.1%	9.4%	9.3%	12.3%	12.5%	12.5%	14.1%	15.6%	10.5%

Since 2016, DX's P/E ratio has varied from as low as the high single-digits to as much as the mid-teens. The average P/E ratio over that time was nearly 10. Adjusting for the higher interest rate environment, we believe that a reasonable fair value P/E ratio for DX is around 9. Compared to the current-year P/E ratio of 9.3, this implies shares are slightly overvalued.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2031
Payout	107%	97%	96%	128%	79%	80%	136%	205%	96%	150%	146%	95%

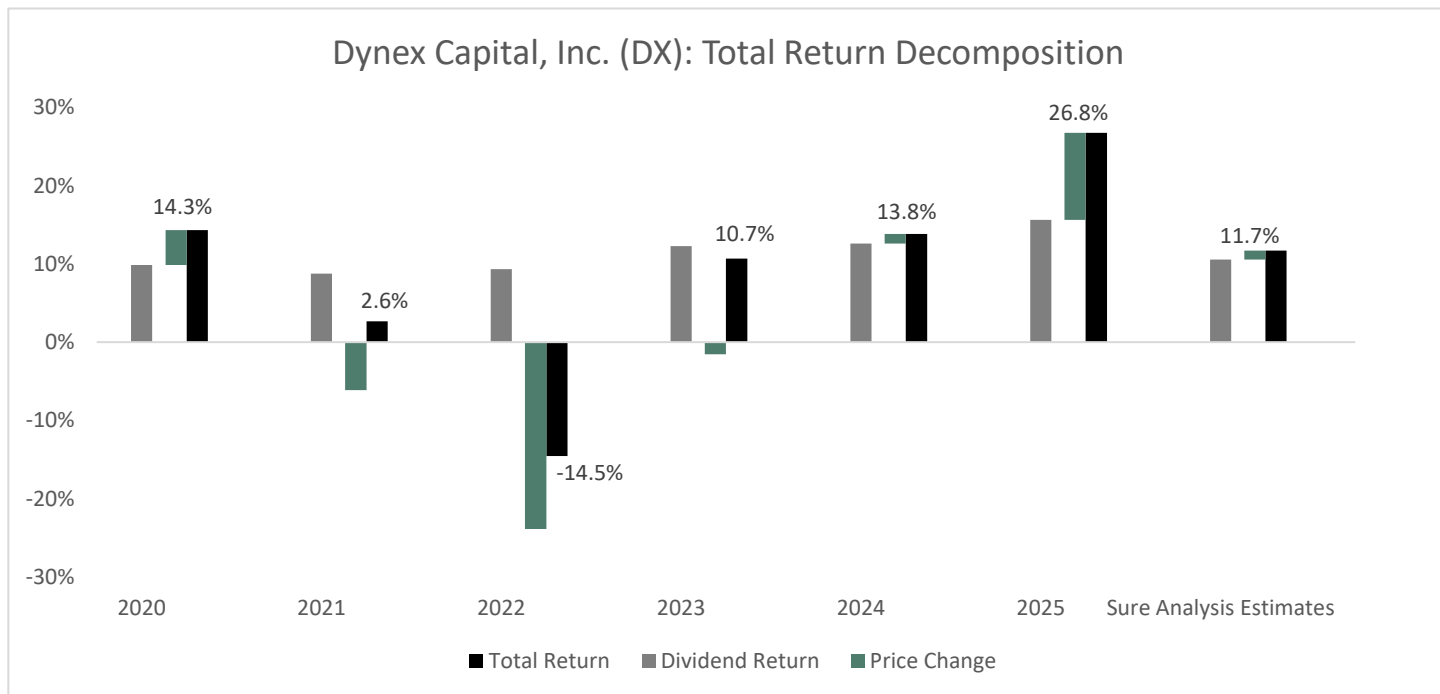

DX brings to the table some competitive advantages, which could enable it to generate strong returns for investors throughout business cycles. These include the trust's experienced management team with expertise in managing securitized real estate assets through multiple economic cycles, as well as its emphasis on maintaining a diversified pool of highly liquid mortgage investments with minimal credit risk.

Of course, like any mREIT, DX is highly leveraged. Any uptick in mortgage defaults could quickly force a dividend cut. Over the past decade, DX has cut its payout several times. We believe that with the payout ratio likely to be almost 150% in 2026, another series of cuts is likely to occur in the coming years, bringing the 2031 payout likely to around $1.50 (a payout ratio of almost 100%).

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

DX's 15.6% dividend yield, 2.5% annual EAD per share growth prospects, and 0.7% annual valuation multiple contraction could generate 11.7% annual total returns through 2031. Because we believe there are better risk-adjusted returns elsewhere, we're reiterating our Hold rating.
