Overview & Current Events

UnitedHealth dates back to 1974 when Charter Med was founded by a group of health care professionals looking for ways to expand healthcare options for consumers. UnitedHealth has certainly done that in the decades since and now offers global healthcare services to tens of millions of people via a wide array of products. The company has two major reporting segments: UnitedHealth and Optum. The former provides global healthcare benefits to individuals, employers, and Medicare/Medicaid beneficiaries. The Optum segment is a services business that seeks to lower healthcare costs and optimize outcomes for its customers. UnitedHealth's market capitalization is $396 billion, and it produces about $445 billion in revenue annually, making it one of the largest companies in America by either measure.

UnitedHealth posted second quarter earnings on July 16th, 2026, and results were better than expected on both the top and bottom lines, and by wide margins for both. Adjusted earnings-per-share came to $6.38, which was $1.46 ahead of estimates. Revenue was up fractionally year-over-year at $112 billion, but that beat estimates by more than a billion dollars.

Cash flow from operations came to $11.1 billion, or 1.9X net income. The medical care ratio was 86.7%, reflecting product design changes, improved medical management, and better aligned pricing. The medical care ratio was aided by a net favorable development of $860 million. The operating cost ratio was 12.7%, including targeted investments in infrastructure, AI capabilities, care delivery, and consumer experience.

The total customer count for UnitedHealthcare was 48.5 million, with revenue of $86 billion, earnings of $3.9 billion, and operating margins of 4.6% of revenue. For Optum, revenue was down 2% year-over-year to $65.7 billion.

The management team raised guidance for the year, and we're now at $19.80 in adjusted earnings-per-share.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2031
EPS	$8.05	$10.07	$12.19	$15.11	$16.88	$19.02	$22.19	$25.12	$27.66	$16.35	$19.80	$39.82
DPS	$2.38	$2.88	$3.45	$4.14	$4.83	$5.60	$6.40	$7.29	$8.18	$8.73	$9.28	$14.95
Shares²	952	969	968	962	961	992	947	935	927	910	895	850

We forecast forward earnings-per-share growth of 15% annually as UnitedHealth looks to rebuild off of what turned out to be a disastrous 2025. We note that the sheer size of UnitedHealth makes it more difficult to grow over time, but Optum continues to be outstanding in pushing the top line higher. Cuts to Medicare funding are a massive headwind to UnitedHealth, and as medical care costs are rising, the company is facing a double whammy of sorts on its revenue and margins. We think it can grow quickly off of what is a low base for 2026, but there is tremendous uncertainty surrounding the company's ability to produce earnings in the near-term. We note improving margins so far in 2026 are a step in the right direction, and guidance is much more bullish than it's been in recent quarters.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	Now	2031
Avg. P/E	16.8	18.4	20.4	16.5	17.8	21.2	23.9	21.0	18.3	20.2	22.0	21.0
Avg. Yld.	1.8%	1.5%	1.4%	1.7%	1.6%	1.4%	1.2%	1.4%	1.6%	2.6%	2.1%	1.8%

UnitedHealth's price-to-earnings multiple is much higher following the sharp increase in the stock from our last update, standing at 22 times earnings. With shares trading near our fair value estimate of 21 times earnings, the impact from the valuation is likely to be mild. The yield is down to 2.1%, but still around double that of the S&P 500.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2031
Payout	30%	29%	28%	27%	29%	29%	29%	29%	30%	53%	47%	38%

We see the payout ratio declining slightly over time, as UnitedHealth's dividend is safe today. At 47% of earnings, UnitedHealth has flexibility in terms of returning capital to shareholders. We note that even with the huge reduction in earnings guidance for this year, the payout is quite safe.

UnitedHealth's competitive advantage is in its gargantuan scale as well as its deeply entrenched customers with high switching costs. Like a utility, health and wellness providers have high switching costs, accruing significant benefits to incumbents like UnitedHealth. It is also quite resistant to recessions as its services are necessities in most cases. Optum remains an outstanding growth engine as well as it continues to outperform UnitedHealthcare. The issue that has arisen is that the US government's spending bill drastically reduces funding for Medicare, which is how UNH is paid for many of its services. The ultimate impact is as yet unknown, but is unequivocally negative.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

We see UnitedHealth as a stock with tremendous uncertainty ahead, but a low valuation to compensate. Its growth forecast makes it attractive to growth investors, while its high rate of dividend growth makes it attractive for those seeking longer term income. We forecast total annual returns of 15.6%, consisting of the current 2.1% yield, 15% earnings growth and a 0.9% headwind from the valuation. We have moved from buy to hold after the big rally in the stock of late.
