Overview & Current Events

Booz Allen Hamilton Holding Corporation traces its roots to 1914. The company had an IPO on November 10, 2010. Booz is a leading provider of professional management and technology consulting services to the U.S. Government. Technology consulting services include information technology, cybersecurity, cloud computing, and engineering services. The company basically provides staffing to U.S. Government clients. About 97% of revenue is derived from contracts where the U.S. Government is the end client. Revenue was approximately 55% defense, 29% civil, and 17% intelligence in FY26. The company had $11.2B in revenue in FY26.

Booz reported mixed results for Q1 FY 2027 on July 24th, 2026. Revenue decreased 4.2% to $2,800M from $2,924M, while adjusted diluted earnings per share gained 22.3% to $1.81 from $1.48 on a year-over-year basis on cost cuts, a lower tax rate, lower share count, and unrealized investment gains. Booz decreased headcount to 30,900 in the quarter from 33,400 in the prior year. Customer staff headcount decreased to 28,200 from 30,400 in the prior year. Contract type mix for the quarter varied as cost-reimbursable contracts was 57%, time-and-materials was 22%, and fixed-price was 21%. Booz is acquiring Ultra I&C Mission Solutions by issuing additional debt.

The backlog rose 3.2% to ~$39.0B of which $4,664M was funded, $10,218M was unfunded, and $24,601M was priced options. The book-to-bill ratio was 1.5X in the quarter, more than the 12-month average.

Booz kept fiscal 2027 guidance at $11.2-$11.7B of revenue and $6.00 to $6.35 adjusted diluted EPS.

The EPS history for Booz Allen Hamilton's operating history as a public company has been volatile because of an unstable federal budget environment. However, Booz exhibited an upward trend in EPS from fiscal 2016 until 2021. Earnings began to grow again in 2023. However, the federal government's budget priorities have changed, and it is cutting personnel. We expect growth to slow and competition to increase. We are now forecasting on average a 6% annual growth rate for EPS out to FY 2032. This will be driven by client demand for the company's services, around 1%+ decrease in share count annually, and tuck-in acquisitions. A downside risk is poor billing practices and significant uncertainty with the current administration's budget and priorities that can lead to contract losses.

The company consistently repurchases shares each year but at the expense of more debt. Booz has reliably increased the dividend at a double-digit rate since FY 2012. However, we previously lowered our forecast to a 4% average annual growth rate in dividend per share out to FY 2032 because leverage is elevated and growth will likely slow. The company has historically paid out 25% to 35% of its earnings in dividend distributions.

¹ BAH's fiscal year ends on the last day of March, and all the tables are in fiscal year.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	Now	2032
Avg. P/E	19.2	17.9	17.3	20.3	20.9	20.0	23.9	22.1	23.4	12.3	11.9	18.0

Booz Allen Hamilton's stock price is down again since our last report on mixed results, despite an improving outlook. We again lowered our fair value estimate to 18X, below the 10-year average, accounting for a challenging contracting environment and headwinds at the U.S. Treasury. We kept our FY 2027 earnings estimate near the mid-point of guidance. Our fair value estimate is $111. Our 5-year price target is $149.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2027	2032
Payout	36%	33%	26%	28%	28%	35%	41%	35%	33%	35%	38%	35%

Booz Allen Hamilton is one of the largest prime services contractors for the U.S. Government. The company's competitive advantages include its scale, long-term history, technical depth, first mover advantage with many clients, and historical knowledge of many consulting projects. This is evident in the ~90% win rate for recompetes contracts and ~61% win rate for new contracts. This provides some degree of recession resistance. But saying that, the company is not immune to economic downturns or slowdowns in federal government spending. Events such as changes in administration or party control of Congress can affect the federal budget and impact Booz' top and bottom lines.

The company has $19M in current long-term debt and $3,917M in long-term debt offset by $540M in cash and equivalents at end of the quarter. The leverage ratio is rising and is now ~2.72X and interest coverage is ~5.78X.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

At present we are forecasting on average a 17.1% annualized total return through FY 2032 from a dividend yield of 3.2%, 6.0% EPS growth, and 8.6% P/E multiple expansion. The current administration has caused a significant shift in budget priorities and the government services contracting environment. That said, demand is picking up, particularly in National Security work. However, competition is strong, headcount is falling, and leverage is high. The firm has been restructuring and making targeted costs and head-count reductions to match demand. Booz Allen Hamilton maintains its 'hold' rating.
