Overview & Current Events

Gladstone Commercial Corporation is a real estate investment trust, or REIT, that specializes in single-tenant and anchored multi-tenant net leased industrial and office properties across the U.S. The trust targets primary and secondary markets that possess favorable economic growth trends, growing populations, strong employment, and robust growth trends. The trust's stated goal is to pay shareholders monthly distributions, which it has done for many years. Gladstone owns over 100 properties in 24 states that are leased to about 100 unique tenants and has a market capitalization of $635 million.

Gladstone posted second quarter earnings on August 6th, 2026, and results were better than expected on both the top and bottom lines. Funds-from-operations per-share came to 38 cents, which was three cents ahead of estimates. Revenue was $43.99 million, beating estimates by $1.81 million.

Operating expenses were $26.2 million against revenue of $44 million. The company attributed higher revenue to increased portfolio size, increased recovery revenues, higher rental rates, and a one-time termination fee recognized in relation to the sale of a property.

As of June 30th, 47% of the company's debt was fixed rate, 47% was hedged floating rate, and the balance was floating rate. After SOFR was 3.68%.

Gladstone acquired 154k square feet of industrial property in Virginia for $22.75 million, which is already leased. The company noted it funded the purchase with internally generated cash rather than equity issuance. The portfolio was 98.7% occupied as of June 30th, with the weighted average lease term at 7.1 years.

We've left our estimate unchanged at $1.40 per-share in FFO for this year.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Gladstone reports funds-from-operations, or FFO, per share rather than earnings-per-share. This is consistent with other REITs, and we'll use FFO as the preferred proxy for underlying earnings power.

Gladstone's FFO-per-share had been between $1.50 and $1.60 for years through 2022, as the trust continues to issue new shares and debt to fund acquisitions, but those acquisitions fail to provide an economic gain. In other words, while the trust's new properties provide growth on a dollar basis, when the cost of those acquisitions is factored in, it is essentially no gain on a per-share basis. We don't have any reason to believe this will change moving forward as Gladstone's common shares are quite expensive to issue, yielding 8%+ at most times, and its preferred stock and debt are not significantly cheaper. This means that Gladstone will struggle to produce economic gains with its capital issuance given that the yields on its properties are also in the high single digits. As a result, our long-term growth estimate for Gladstone is 1%. We don't see any cause for pessimism as earnings impairment isn't likely. However, investors should note that any sort of meaningful growth is going to be difficult to generate.

The distribution had been flat at $1.50 for the past decade as the trust has struggled to grow FFO-per-share and thus, has been unable to boost the distribution. For the start of 2023, Gladstone cut its distribution by 20% to a new level of $1.20 per year, where it remains today.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	Now	2031
Avg. P/E	11.1	13.8	11.9	13.7	11.4	13.9	11.9	9.0	11.4	7.6	9.4	10.5
Avg. Yld.	8.8%	7.1%	8.0%	7.0%	8.4%	7.0%	8.1%	9.1%	7.4%	11.2%	9.1%	7.8%

Today the trust trades for 9.4 times this year's FFO-per-share estimate, which is near its historical lows. The long-term average valuation for Gladstone is just over 11 times FFO-per-share, and we've moved our fair value estimate to 10.5 times earnings. The stock remains quite attractively priced despite a recent rally.

The current 9.1% yield is quite elevated by historical standards. We see the yield potentially declining over time as the payout remains the same, but earnings and the valuation rise.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2031
Payout	98%	97%	95%	95%	96%	97%	96%	82%	85%	86%	86%	82%

Gladstone doesn't necessarily have a competitive advantage given that it operates in much the same way as any other commercial REIT. However, Gladstone's selection of properties has been outstanding over time as its occupancy has remained high through a variety of economic conditions.

In the case of recession, Gladstone should fare quite well as it has long lease terms, so the impact on the trust's earnings should be minimal, which is consistent with how Gladstone performed during the Great Recession. Last year's challenges have shown that Gladstone can weather a tough environment.

The payout ratio is very high, but we see the trust's FFO-per-share of about $1.40 annually as enough to maintain the lowered dividend. Investors should not expect a meaningful raise anytime soon due to the factors discussed above.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

We forecast 10.3% total annual returns for Gladstone Commercial moving forward. We see the yield as attractive at 9.1%, and the stock is modestly under fair value. We like Gladstone's recession performance and its steady FFO-per-share, but have a sell rating on no recent dividend increases.
