Overview & Current Events

Regency Centers Corporation is a fully integrated real estate investment trust specializing in retail locations whose tenants include highly productive grocers, restaurants, service providers, and various other best-in-class retailers. The trust has full or partial ownership interests in 482 retail properties primarily anchored by market-leading grocery stores. Its properties are principally located in affluent and infill trade areas across the United States and contain about 50.8 million square feet of gross leasable area on a consolidated and pro-rata basis. Regency Centers generated $1.61 billion in revenues last year and is based in Jacksonville, Florida.

On July 29th, 2026, Regency Centers reported its Q2 2026 results for the period ending June 30th, 2026. Nareit FFO rose to $226.3 million, up from $212.1 million last year. On a per-share basis, FFO reached $1.21, a five-cent boost compared to the prior year. Same-property NOI increased 3.8% year-over-year, supported by 3.7% base rent growth. Regency's same-property portfolio was 96.9% leased, up 30 basis points sequentially and 40 basis points year-over-year, while same-property percent commenced was 94.5%, up 50 basis points year-over-year.

Regency also reported 2.1 million square feet of comparable new and renewal leases at blended cash rent spreads of 10.4%, started $68 million of development and redevelopment projects, and completed $20 million of redevelopment projects. Following the quarter, Regency acquired two shopping centers for $101 million, or $42 million at its share. For 2026, management raised its Nareit FFO per share guidance to $4.84–$4.88 and same-property NOI growth guidance to 3.7%–4.1%. We have applied the midpoint of this range in our estimates.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Regency has achieved a solid track record of modest but gradually higher FFO/share over time. The 10-year and 5-year FFO/share CAGRs stand at 6.0% and 3.8%, respectively. In the next few years after 2020, the REIT excelled despite the challenges faced by retail locations due to e-commerce growth, a trend that was further accentuated during the COVID-19 pandemic. Regency's major tenants, including Publix (2.8% of annualized base rent), TJX Companies, Inc. (2.7%), and Albertsons Companies, Inc. (2.7%), are not at risk of going out of business anytime soon.

Regency's growth prospects may seem somewhat limited, but there are noteworthy factors to consider. These include rising leasing rates, portfolio value enhancement within its development pipeline, and the pursuit of additional accretive investment opportunities, exemplified by the acquisition of Urstadt Biddle. Along with taking into account higher interest rates, we anticipate a 4% growth in FFO/share through 2031.

Updated August 4th, 2026, by Nikolaos Sismanis

Regency slashed its dividend during the Great Recession and resumed its DPS growth in 2014. Since then, dividends have grown annually. We expect DPS growth of around 3.5% in the medium-term, which underlying FFOs could sustain.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	Now	2031
Avg. P/FFO	31.4	20.6	17.2	17.2	13.5	16.6	10.7	14.4	15.1	15.1	16.5	14.5
Avg. Yld.	2.3%	3.3%	3.4%	3.5%	6.0%	3.5%	5.8%	4.6%	4.2%	4.1%	3.8%	4.2%

Regency has traded a P/FFO of 14.4 over the past five years. We believe that today's multiple of 16.5 slightly overvalues the stock. This is due to the current interest rate environment and Regency's modest growth prospects. A P/FFO of 14.5 should better suit the stock, as it takes account of these elements, along with the trust's qualities, including tenant diversification and high occupancy rates. Regency is currently offering a yield of 3.8%.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2031
Payout	73%	68%	58%	60%	81%	60%	62%	63%	63%	62%	62%	61%

While Regency did cut its dividend back during the Great Financial Crisis, we don't expect a dividend cut due to the resiliency shown during the pandemic combined with the relatively comfortable 62% payout ratio based on this year's expected FFO/share. That being said, if the trust's financials were to be under pressure again, a cut is not unlikely either. Overall, Regency enjoys several attractive attributes, including a high-quality tenant base of blue-chip companies, with no tenant accounting for more than 2.8% of annualized base rent (Publix). It also maintains a strong balance sheet with an A- credit rating from S&P and an A3 rating from Moody's, has ample liquidity with about $1.5 billion of available capacity under its revolving credit facility, and features pro-rata net debt and preferred stock to TTM operating EBITDAre of 5.0x, which remains within a reasonable range for a grocery-anchored shopping center REIT. Still, a recession is likely to adversely impact the trust's financials and lead to a dividend cut.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Regency Centers has demonstrated a strong track record of FFO generation, sustaining solid financial health even during the pandemic despite considerable challenges. In addition, management's guidance suggests another year of relatively stable performance ahead, despite interest rates remaining high. We project annualized total returns of 5.0% through 2031, driven by 4% FFO/share growth and a 3.8% dividend yield, partially offset by a 2.6% annual valuation headwind. Given these projected returns, we maintain a hold rating on the stock.
