Overview & Current Events

SEI Investments was founded in 1968 and over the last 50+ years has grown into a market capitalization of $12.6 billion. SEI is a global provider of investment processing, investment management, and investment operations solutions for financial institutions and advisors. SEI has about $1.6 trillion combined in assets under administration and management. The company should produce about $2.6 billion in revenue this year.

SEI posted second quarter earnings on July 22nd, 2026, and results were much better than expected on both the top and bottom lines. Earnings came to $1.66 per share, which was 25 cents ahead of estimates. Revenue was up almost 15% year-on-year to $642 million, beating estimates by more than $5 million. The company's IMS segment posted revenue growth of 17%, while private banking revenue was up 11%. Advisors revenue was up 30%, partially on acquisitions, but also from higher market values.

Adjusted operating profit was up 36% year-over-year and adjusted earnings rose 38%. These two, along with revenue, were all records. In total, earnings-per-share growth was driven by mid-teens revenue growth, 500 basis points of margin expansion, and a 3% reduction in the share count.

SEI repurchased $112 million in stock at an average price of $87 during the quarter.

We now see $6.25 in adjusted earnings-per-share for this year, which would easily be a record, if achieved.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

From 2013 to 2019, SEI managed to double its earnings, and looking forward, we believe that strong growth can continue. SEI saw higher earnings-per-share in each year since 2011, until the COVID-impacted 2020. We are forecasting 12% earnings-per-share growth over the next five years as momentum remains strong. We see SEI achieving this result through continued revenue expansion as more customers adopt its SEI Wealth Platform, and its relatively newer IT services, as well as assets under management and advisement growth. We see mid-single-digit revenue growth as the primary driver of earnings going forward. SEI also buys back stock at low single-digit rates and is seeing significant margin expansion with its higher revenue. The key is revenue growth as SEI invests heavily in its future, and revenue growth has slowed.

SEI's dividend growth has been decent in recent years but it is not a high-income stock at this point. We see dividend growth going forward, but keep in mind that investors own SEI for the earnings growth potential, not for the yield, and that is not going to change anytime soon. Indeed, the payout ratio remains very low and given how much SEI invests in its platform on a regular basis, in addition to share repurchases, we expect the payout ratio to remain fairly constant.

Valuation Analysis

| Year      | 2016  | 2017 | 2018 | 2019 | 2020 | 2021 | 2022 | 2023 | 2024 | 2025 | Now  | 2031 |
|-----------|-------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|
| Avg. P/E  | 22.60 | 22.3 | 20.3 | 15.8 | 18.3 | 16   | 15.3 | 18.1 | 18.7 | 14.7 | 16.8 | 18.0 |
| Avg. Yld. | 1.2%  | 1.0% | 1.0% | 1.2% | 1.3% | 1.3% | 1.4% | 1.4% | 1.2% | 1.2% | 1.0% | 0.7% |

SEI’s price-to-earnings multiple is lower than our last report, and it is now trading at 16.8 times this year’s earnings, which is well below our estimate of fair value at 18 times earnings. The stock’s historical range is fairly narrow at 16 to 22 times earnings. We therefore see a meaningful positive impact from the valuation looking forward. The dividend is not a priority for SEI as it continues to spend cash on its products and services to fuel future growth. This is not a stock one owns for the yield, and its yield is quite close to that of the S&P 500.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

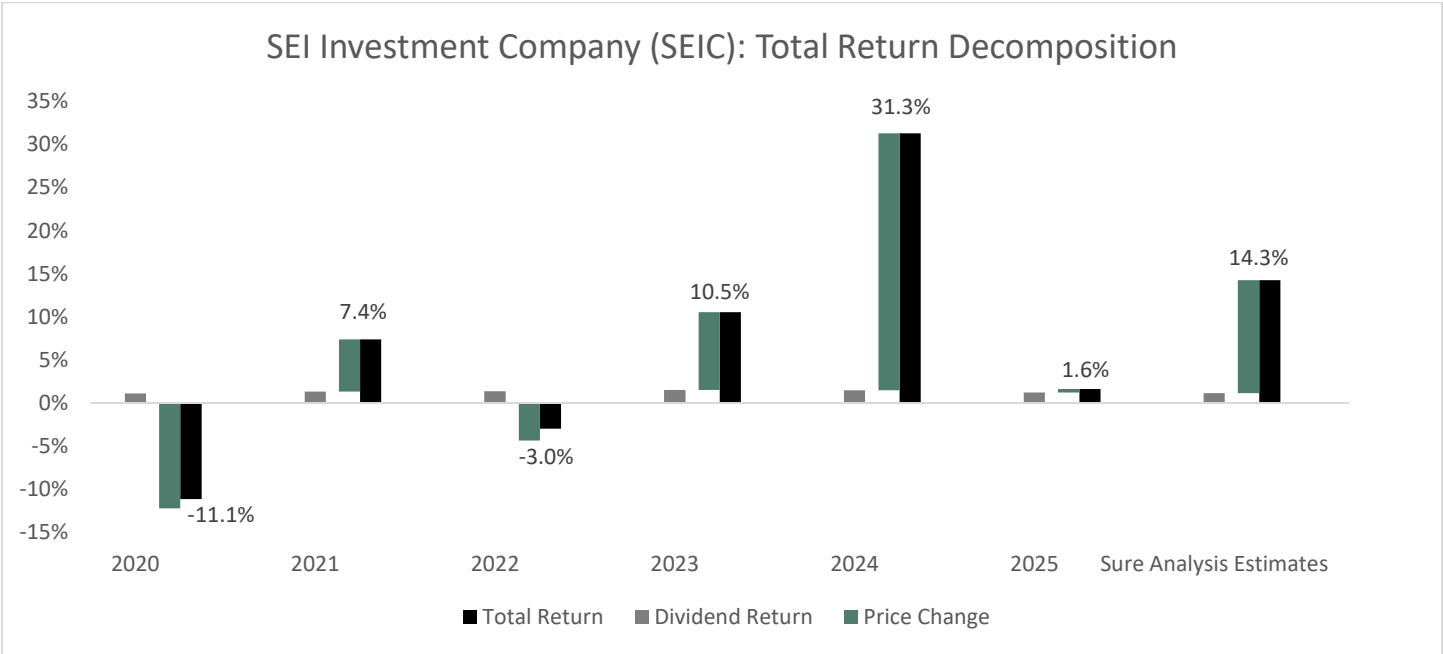

| Year   | 2016 | 2017 | 2018 | 2019 | 2020 | 2021 | 2022 | 2023 | 2024 | 2025 | 2026 | 2031 |
| Payout | 27%  | 24%  | 20%  | 21%  | 24%  | 20%  | 22%  | 25%  | 22%  | 18%  | 17%  | 13%  |

The payout ratio is very low as earnings-per-share expansion has outpaced dividend growth in recent years. There may come a time when the dividend is a significant source of returns, but SEI is understandably focused on growth today. SEI’s competitive advantage is in its platform and services, which allow it to drive efficiencies and lower risk for its clients. That does not make it immune from economic downturns, however, as the Great Recession dinged revenue and earnings meaningfully. Given the industry SEI serves, it is reasonable to expect material weakness during a recession, so that is something investors should consider. In addition, weak equity market performance is another headwind that comes up from time to time.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Overall, SEI looks like an undervalued stock with good growth potential. We are forecasting 14.3% total annual returns going forward, comprised of the 1% current yield, 12% earnings-per-share growth, and a 1.4% tailwind from the valuation. We’ve moved the stock from buy to hold after Q2 results. So long as assets in custody rise, SEI is a strong growth stock to consider owning, but total returns have been dampened by the recent rally in the stock.
