Overview & Current Events

Silgan Holdings manufactures and sells metal and plastic containers, as well as packaging closures. Its containers are found in everyday food consumables such as pet food, fruits and vegetables, and drinks, while its closures are applied to the beverage, garden, and personal care products. The company generated nearly $6.5 billion in revenue last year and is based in Stamford, Connecticut.

On February 24th, Silgan raised its dividend by 5% to a quarterly rate of $0.21.

On July 29th, 2026, Silgan posted its Q2 results for the period ending June 30th, 2026. For the quarter, net sales grew 7% year-over-year to $1.64 billion, mainly driven by the contractual pass-through of higher raw material costs. Dispensing & Specialty Closures sales rose 2% to $713.9 million, as raw material and other cost pass-through and favorable FX offset weaker volume/mix, mainly from lower dispensing-product demand in Brazil; adjusted EBIT was nearly flat at $107.6 million. Metal Containers sales increased 13% to $763.9 million, reflecting higher raw material and manufacturing cost pass-through. Volumes were unchanged overall, as high-single-digit growth in pet food was offset by lower soup volumes and more normal fruit and vegetable ordering patterns.

Adjusted EBIT declined 7% to $65.9 million. Silgan also signed a long-term supply agreement with a large vegetable-pack customer. Custom Containers sales rose 3% to $165.5 million, while adjusted EBIT increased 9% to $27.2 million as improved price/cost and restructuring savings outweighed a 4% volume decline. Net income declined to $75.8 million ($0.72 per share) from $89.0 million ($0.83), while adjusted EPS eased to $0.98 from $1.01. Adjusted EBIT fell 4% to $185.3 million, although adjusted EBITDA was unchanged at $253.0 million. Silgan maintained its 2026 adjusted EPS outlook of $3.73 to $3.93 and free cash flow guidance of about $450 million. We have utilized the midpoint of the updated range in our estimates. Past figures in our tables reflect GAAP figures, nonetheless.

Separately, Silgan reportedly made a non-binding €41-per-share takeover approach for Gerresheimer, but the proposal was rejected and the companies are no longer in discussions.

Over the past decade, Silgan has averaged an EPS and DPS CAGR of 8.7% and 10%, respectively. Demand for packaged and canned foods, as well as sanitization products, has historically hovered stable levels. We believe the company will continue to enjoy stable demand over the long term as its containers and dispensing closures are primarily utilized in consumer staple products which in turn also enjoy stable demand.

We retain our EPS CAGR estimate at 6%, pricing in the possibility of a slowdown in earnings growth due to the company gradually maturing, and to be prudent. Share buybacks should mildly aid EPS growth over time. The company's share count has declined by about 11% over the past decade. Silgan repurchased a modest $68 million worth of stock last year. That said, we have set our DPS CAGR estimate at 7% as the current payout ratio should afford meaningful payout increases. Silgan has grown its DPS annually for 22 consecutive years.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	Now	2031
Avg. P/E	20.1	22.6	11.1	17.6	12.5	13.5	13.6	15.5	18.0	17.4	10.6	14.5
Avg. Yld.	1.3%	1.1%	1.6%	1.5%	1.5%	1.3%	1.5%	1.5%	1.6%	1.7%	2.1%	1.6%

Silgan's valuation has remained relatively reasonable over the years, rarely outrunning its underlying financial growth. Shares appear quite undervalued at 10.6 times their FY2026 expected adjusted EPS. The stock's yield has almost always remained relatively low, at around 1% to 2%. Despite the rapid dividend increases, aggregate dividends paid out (as well as buybacks) have remained quite humble as the company reinvests most of its proceeds back into the business.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2031
Payout	27%	15%	20%	25%	17%	17%	21%	24%	29%	30%	22%	23%

Investors can rely on Silgan's dividends since the company's payout ratio has historically remained quite low. It currently stands at 22%. Since the company's IPO in 1996, Silgan has never reported a money-losing quarter. Its products are vital for various consumer staples. Hence, its operations are quite stable, displayed in its 22-year dividend growth record. At the same time, however, Silgan operates in a massively competitive space, with quite thin margins. The company's competitors include firms that are multiple times larger than Silgan, such as the Ball Corp. (BLL), the Packaging Corporation of America (PKG), keeping Silgan's net profit margins in the mid-single-digits. Overall, we believe that the company has showcased decades of robust cash flow generation, with little volatility to its financials. Its operations should remain relatively stable even under adverse economic conditions.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Silgan has a long history of stable returns, with the stock lacking any wild fluctuations in its share price throughout the decades. Combining our relatively modest growth expectations, the dividend yield, and a valuation tailwind, we forecast annualized returns of around 14.4% in the medium-term. Hence, we rate shares as a buy. However, we remind investors that they must be aware of the company's single-digit net income margins, which could easily be compressed following incompetence in passing inflationary costs through. Failure to do so could impact future returns. The pass-through of costs to Silgan's product pricing has been managed well historically, nonetheless.
