Overview & Current Events

Stryker is a global leader in the medical device sector. The company's product lines include surgical equipment, neurovascular products and orthopedic implants. The company was founded in 1941 by Dr. Homer Stryker because he felt that products that the medical device industry offered were not meeting the needs of his patients. Today, the company employs more than 53,000 people worldwide. In November of 2021, Stryker reorganized its businesses into two reporting segments: MedSurg and Neurotechnology and Orthopaedics.

On December 11th, 2025, Stryker reported that it was raising its quarterly dividend 4.8% to $0.88 per share, extending the company's dividend growth streak to 32 consecutive years.

On July 30th, 2026, Stryker announced second quarter results for the period ending June 30th, 2026. For the quarter, revenue grew 9.6 to $6.6 billion, which was $20 million more than expected. Adjusted earnings-per-share of $3.69 compared favorably to $3.13 in the prior year and was $0.20 ahead of estimates.

Organic revenue growth returned to its previously high levels of 9.0% for the quarter. Management stated that it had made progress in the recovery from a cyber-attack that occurred in March. This attack disrupted worldwide operations and negatively impacted Q1 2026 results. For the quarter, volume was higher by 9% while pricing was flat. MedSurg and Neurotechnology generated sales of $3.6 billion, which represented organic growth of 9.2%. Orthopaedics grew 8.6% to $3.0 billion. Volume increased 9.1% for MedSurg and Neurotechnology and was up 8.6% for Orthopaedics. Prices were higher by 0.1% for MedSurg and Neurotechnology and while Orthopaedics was unchanged. Shares closed lower by 9% following the earnings release.

Stryker provided updated guidance for 2026 as well. The company narrowed its expectations organic revenue growth to 8.3% to 9.3%, compared to a prior range of 8.0% to 9.5%. Adjusted earnings-per-share are now forecasted to be in a range of $14.95 to $15.10 for the year, compared to $14.90 to $15.10 previously. At the midpoint, this would represent growth of 10.1% from 2025.

Stryker has grown earnings-per-share at a rate of 13.5% per year since 2016 and 10.6% over the last five years. We reaffirm our earnings growth rate of 12% due to the company's long track record of growth. The company was very resilient during the last recession, only seeing a $0.01 decline in earnings in 2009. The company did see earnings declines in 2013, 2014, and 2020 as well, but growth quickly returned in the ensuing years in each situation.

Stryker Corporation (SYK)

Updated August 3rd, 2026, by Nathan Parsh

Stryker has increased its dividend at an average rate of 8.8% per year over the past 10 years, though that growth has slowed somewhat in the medium-term to 6.9%. We have lowered our expected dividend growth rate to 6% to reflect the pace of recent raises.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	Now	2031
Avg. P/E	25.4	28.7	22.8	24	26.9	29.4	26.2	28.3	29.5	25.8	22.2	26.0
Avg. Yld.	1.4%	1.3%	1.2%	1.0%	1.1%	0.9%	1.1%	1.0%	0.9%	1.0%	1.1%	0.7%

Shares of Stryker have gained $37, or 12.5%, since our May 6th, 2026 report. Shares currently trade at 22.2 times earnings based off estimates for 2026. We are reaffirming our target P/E of 26 as this is more in-line with the long-term average valuation. If shares reverted to our target price-to-earnings ratio by 2031, then multiple expansion would be a 3.2% tailwind to annual returns over this period.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2031
Payout	36%	35%	27%	25%	32%	28%	30%	28%	26%	25%	23%	18%

Stryker's strength during the most recent recession should give shareholders the confidence that the company can thrive in a difficult economic climate. As the leader in the medical device sector, Stryker's products are in demand around the world. For example, the company continues to see growth in its Mako robot installations, as well as a higher number of procedures performed. These figures are likely to grow as more surgeons become comfortable with using a robot during surgery. Another competitive advantage Stryker has over its peers is its organic growth. Over the past decade, Stryker has consistently outperformed in peer group in the medical device sector in terms of organic growth. Investors are willing to pay up for that type of growth, which is why the company's price-to-earnings ratio has been higher than normal in recent years.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Following second quarter results, Stryker Corporation is now projected to return 16.3% annually over the next five years, down from our prior estimate of 19.0%. Our projected return stems from a 12% earnings growth rate, a starting yield of 1.1%, and a single-digit contribution from multiple expansion. A cyberattack near the end of last quarter impacted results, but Stryker rebounded in the most recent period. The company remains a leading name in its industry. We have raised our 2026 price target $2 to $689. We continue to rate shares of Stryker as a buy due to projected returns and a strong dividend risk score.
